

Jim Evangelista – Executive Director Technology & Business Development Shiloh Industries, Inc.

Jim Evangelista has been associated with Shiloh Industries since 1990. He brings a unique combination of product and process experience within both OEM and supplier organizations.

Jim started his automotive career, in 1976, as a product design engineer in the Engine Division of Ford Motor Company. He has held product design and development positions at American Motors, Chrysler, Johnson Controls and Magna. Jim started his own consulting company, Technical Marketing Associates, in 1990, where he specialized in helping automotive suppliers understand collaborative technical customer development. This approach brought together product design requirements and process capabilities adding non-traditional technologies and solutions when needed.

Jim received both his B.S. & M.S. degrees from S.U.N.Y. @ Stonybrook.
